INDUS- TRIAL LOFT.

The open-plan loft-type homes use rational layouts to maximise the feeling of space. Industrial finishes can add an eclectic note in which textures and materials play a fundamental role.

In this case, the homely and comfortable touch is provided by upholstered furniture such as the Nap sofa-bed and the Tea chair, thanks to their colours and textures. The warmth of the wooden Nudo table in a walnut colour creates a delicate contrast with the concrete floor or the steel walls.

Creating a small jungle with indoor plants on the desk area adds a fresh, natural touch and improves air quality.

CHIC AND NEU- TRAL.

HOME OFFICE

Dusty shades like pink create calm ambiences, as this soft palette and its almost monochromatic application bring light and freshness, ideal for a small home office.

The natural finish of the Nudo desk reinforces the clean and delicate aesthetic of this space, while the hexagonal quilting of the Tea chair and armchair adds texture and dynamism to this cosy and intimate working corner. Decorative elements add a playful touch, reinforcing the idea that pink doesn't have to be cheesy.

AR- TISTIC AND CREA- TIVE.

Home office hues don't always have to be neutral. Colour applied to a wall or in small details can inject high doses of energy to motivate and inspire.

In this space, neutral elements such as the natural finish of the Nudo table and the grey upholstery of the Tea chair are perfectly integrated into a fresh, fun and dynamic interior design.

In addition, to make good use of the space, the walls can turn into work boards to organize things, as well as a focal point in which to display personal objects.

The small Estante cabinet is an ideal piece to store items, bringing joy and order to the chaos of the most creative studies.

CLAS- SIC VIBES.

A simple, neat and elegant corner in nature's own palette, with walnut colour for the Nudo desk or forest green for the Tea chair. The organic shapes of both designs are subtly integrated into this contemporary yet classically-inspired setting.

The soft palette and noble materials are ideal for creating calm and timeless environments, a perfect place to think and create. Details such as a picture or small decorative elements provide a fresh, casual touch, making the corner personal and attractive.

RURAL HOME OFFICE WITH A VIEW.

Although old rural houses did not contemplate a dedicated space for a small office, any corner can be a good place to install a small, flexible home office with a view of the countryside.

These simple homes do not need great artifice to create cosy, natural and vital spaces. The neutral floor and wall tones allow subtle touches of colour, as does the Tea chair with a two-tone upholstery that combines earthy hues.

The mixture of original architectural elements with other more contemporary ones offers interesting results in decorative terms

NUDO DESK

The office desk is an example of the versatility of Nudo range, as its reduced size (120x70x74) makes it a practical option for a home office. Although light colours and natural materials are desirable as they convey calm and facilitate concentration, there are 18 stain colours to choose from, so it will fit perfectly into the room's decor.

A special hard-wearing matt treatment gives the table a traditional wax-like finish, accentuating the natural grain of the solid oak top and reduces reflections.

José Manuel Ferrero has reduced the lounge chair to its minimum expression. The result: a light and soft chair. The curved shape of the back is supportive yet flexible, thanks to the injected polyurethane. As well as the rest of the Tea Collection the chairs incorporate hexagonal quilting and the possibility of creating both bi-coloured pieces. Oak and beech feet are also available.
