*Audo launches Wing Wall Lamp
— sculptural light in motion.*

First unveiled in Norm Architects' Sjöparken project in Halland, Sweden, the Wing Wall Lamp made its debut as part of the studio's serene lakeside retreat, a setting that perfectly reflected its balance of form, function and atmosphere.

The Wing Wall lamp extends the quiet poetry of Kenneth Bergenblad's Wing design into a new realm, translating the sculptural elegance of the floor model into a wall-mounted form.

With the same sense of lightness and movement that defines the series, Wing Wall offers a new mode of presence; one that blends functionality with architectural grace. Designed to be both precise and poetic, its folded aluminium shade rotates and tilts to direct glare-free light where it is needed, transforming a simple gesture into an expression of thoughtfulness.

In two finishes — polished aluminium with a white interior and bronzed aluminium with a black interior — the piece honours the Scandinavian tradition of craftsmanship while engaging with contemporary interiors. Without the distraction of additional controls, Wing Wall invites direct interaction, offering a pure, pared-back experience of light.

The Wing lighting collection is part of an ongoing conversation between heritage and innovation, craftsmanship and usability, and a lasting reminder that design can both illuminate and inspire.
